PROMOTING THE ADVANCEMENT OF OCEAN BEACH, POINT LOMA HEIGHTS AND THE MISSION BAY DEVELOPMENT

OUR BEACH IS OUR GREATEST ASSET --- LET'S IMPROVE IT

THESE PICTURES taken for the News by Ralph Petty, photographer, graphically portray a condition bordering on the ridiculous.

The City of San Diego and its various civic organizations spend thousands of dollars each year advertising San Diego's glories to prospective tourists throughout the country. Much of the emphasis of this advertising is placed on our "lovely" beaches!

THE UPPER PICTURE on this page shows a view of the beach nearest to downtown San Diego: OCEAN BEACH. The News has been assured by the City administration that our beach will be cleaned regularly this summer. The News commends the City for this plan and prints this picture to remind local residents of things that used to be (and, incidentally, to assure the City Dads of the continuing necessity of carrying through their beach-cleaning program).

THE TWO PICTURES on the left are printed to call attention to another great need for the improvement of OCEAN BEACH. Displayed are the approaches to the bathing beach most commonly used by beach visitors.

THE CENTER PHOTO shows the broken and dangerous pavement along the south side of the Ocean Beach police sub-station where the beach lifeguard headquarters is also located.

THE LOWER PICTURE was taken toward lifeguard headquarters looking away from the waterfront on the beach and shows the route of direct access to the beach. Also shown in the lower cut are the shower facilities provided for the hundreds of people who flock to our beach every week-end. The entire aspect is certainly not inviting and presents actual dangers to bathers.

WHAT WE ASK

The News is aware of the fact that little in the way of permanent beach improvement is possible until the still disputed high-tide line is determined along the water-front here. However, we believe that the City can no longer afford to leave conditions as they are at present. We, therefore, respectfully submit the following suggestions for temporary improvements which, we believe, should be made before the summer season gets in full swing this year:

SURFACE with blacktop or other suitable material the area on each side and in back of the police station and extending to the sand beach including a covering for the bare rocks of the break-water.

INSTALL open, overhead showers in a suitable location, preferably on the surfaced area where there would be adequate drainage. Nothing as elaborate as bath houses is absolutely required at the present time. Overhead showers with pull ropes on each nozzle such as can be seen at several other beaches in the area can be installed at minimum cost and should be adequate for this season at least.

Kiwanis Club Sees Movie of National Soap Box Derby

NEARLY 300 SEE FILM STORY OF RACE WON BY KLECAN OF OCEAN BEACH

At their Tuesday evening meeting, the Ocean Beach Kiwanis Club saw the movie depiction of the International Soap Box Derby, held last summer in Akron, Ohio, at which an Ocean Beach boy, Gilbert Klecan, rode to fame and the international championship.

The Kiwanians had their dinner meeting at Wallace Hall as usual, and then adjourned to the auditorium of the new Community Center, where the movie was shown. Children of the Ocean Beach area were invited and an audience estimated at from 250 to 300 saw the film of the spectacular race and the events leading up to it.

Among the guests at the Kiwanis meeting was Robert Dent of East San Diego, who is Lieut. Governor of the District.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sirs:

This is to congratulate the writer of the brave, and timely editorial "Which Shall It Be—Shack Town or Utopia?"

It takes a great deal of courage to express one's views on a subject that touches so many of one's friends as this one does, but it is about time for the residents of Ocean Beach to display their civic pride.

If we don't build a really good town now, our children will grow up in a community of beach shacks, fit only for summer vacations. We have the most beautiful spot in the world, and it is up to us to make the most of our assets.

Let us forget personal feelings and rally around this cause, it is bigger than individuals. We have the nucleus of a good town in our excellent business district, now we mustn't spoil it by creating a

The News last week carried a story referring to a "soap box derby" race for local youths to be sponsored by Ocean Beach Kiwanis club. The wording of this story was inacurate. The term "soap box derby" is copyrighted and should not have been used in connection with the race to be held here this June. The local Kiwanis club WILL sponsor a race to be known as "Crackerbox Derby." The rules and qualifications for entry in this race will be the same as those used in the "soap box derby." The "Crackerbox Derby," a local event, will be in the nature of a preview of the San Diego-wide "soap box derby" to be held later. Entries eligible for one race would be eligible for the other. Further information on the contest will be published in the News in succeeding issues.

COPS PLAY HIDE AND SEEK WITH FUGITIVES IN CAVES

The cliffs at the foot of Tivoli St. figured in a "cops-and-robbers" hunt Tuesday afternoon when two 15-year-old fugitives from the Mt. Woodson detention camp used the caves under the cliffs for sanctuary from Policemen Carrel Pease and Frank Schmidt. Azure Vista residents had called police when they saw the two boys, one armed with a gun, stealing traffic control lanterns from the road block on Sunset Cliffs Blvd. Upon the arrival of the police, the boys scurried down the cliffs and into the narrow openings of the caves.

The police decided it was a job for the lifeguards, so they called Guards Gordon Penwarden and Roger Grady to crawl into the caves after the boys. The guards also were unable to apprehend the youths, since they could not find them in the labyrinth of caves. The officers then went up above and kept a vigil for two hours, at which time the boys, apparently bored with the hide and seek, surrendered.

Intermural Track Meet at Dana Nets High Speed Results

The annual Intramural Track Meet at Dana Junior High school last Friday afternoon (April 11) confirmed the fact that the local kids are indeed a fast-stepping lot. The running events provided some unusually fast times for junior high school boys, including a 6 second 50-yard dash and a 10.9 second 100, both turned in by Clyde Jones.

The meet featured competition in A, B and C classes, with each class broken down into several teams, and 10 to 12 contestants on a team. In the class A battle, the sixth period team turned in a total of 48½ points, 38½ points ahead of their nearest rival, the fourth period team. The class B

Guests for the April 10 meeting were Ralph Salsbury of the Encinitas den, and Jerome Karpeles of Los Angeles, a guest of Dr. Seymour Kuntz. The Lions adjourned to witness the dedication of the Community Center as had been planned at the preceding meeting.

STORY OF FISHING PIER

By F. G. Swan

The recent upsurge of interest in the construction of an adequate fishing pier on the Ocean Beach shore is a good omen as it evidences that the people of this community are waking up to the possibilities of making Ocean Beach one of the country's outstanding sportfishing meccas. In this and ensuing articles we will attempt to enlighten our readers on the history of the uncompleted and dormant Del Monte Avenue pier and on the pros and cons in the dispute over the wisdom of completion of the pier at its present location or constructing it at the original site on Guizot St.

In the intensified campaign which this newspaper and the Ocean Beach civic and business interests are carrying on to develop this community into the beach paradise which it deserves to be, we must never forget that the construction of a fishing pier is the first and most important step in the direction of our goal. There is little doubt that a pier extending 2500 to 3000 feet out into the kelp beds off Sunset Cliffs would attract the country's leading sportsmen to this area, with consequent benefit to Ocean Beach and San Diego as a whole. This influx of sports interests would very likely result in the construction in Ocean Beach of one or more large beach hotels and apartment houses, with consequent increase in tourist trade and property values in this community.

Far-sighted businessmen and sportsmen of Ocean Beach and San Diego long ago saw the need for this pier. In the early thirties the San Diego Fishing Pier Association was organized with David E. Parsons, prominent Ocean Beach sportsman, as its president. Mr. Parsons, together with other local sports enthusiasts and businessmen, circulated petitions calling for the construction of a 2500 to 3000 foot pier near the foot of Guizot Street and gathered over 10,000 signatures. This petition was submited to the City Council where it met with favorable reaction. Plans for the construction got under way, but the Council began to be deluged with protests from residents of the area near the foot of Guizot Street, even though the necessary shore land had been deeded to the city by private landowners. These protests resulted in a change of location to the foot of Del Monte Avenue.

Norma Jean Tells of Meeting Former Pt. Loma High Student in Texas Cafe; Works in San Antonio

This week's installment of the travelogue being written by Norma Jean Belloff, youthful Ocean Beach cyclist who is making a cross-country bike trip, finds her in southeastern Texas. Below are excerpts from letters received by her mother, Mrs. F. H. Belloff, of 2111 Mendocino Drive. Mrs. Belloff also reports that Norma phoned her from San Antonio on Easter Sunday.

March 27, 1947.

Dear Mom:

I'm about 15 miles from Del Rio and have stopped for lunch under a white cement bridge that is a little higher than the Mission Beach bridge, but is only a third as long.

Spring is really thriving! The earth is alive with happy creatures. A flame-colored cardinal sings from a nearby bush. His chest is pushed out, his throat is puffed. The brilliance of his feathers makes him show among the new green leaves like a white sailboat on a blue lake. On a lower branch pauses his light-colored mate. She seems to be looking for something—the right twig for a nest? The cardinal turns to sing to the south for awhile. He seems to want the whole world to hear his proud, trilling song. Swallows are dipping and swooping to the cement girders under the bridge. They fill the air with their squeaky leather murmur. Up the valley comes the almost human cry of a lamb,

MR. AND MRS. PETCHER MOVE TO CHICAGO, ILL.

Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Petcher of Mission Beach left last Wednesday to make their home in Chicago, Ill. The Petchers and their son Ronnie lived in Ocean Beach for seven years up until four months ago when they moved to Mission Beach. Mr. Petcher was employed at Marc's Sport Shop for a year and a half and Mrs. Petcher worked at the Gilbert's store for five months. Mr. Petcher says he will manage a restaurant and cocktail lounge in a country club in Chicago. He added that he may return to Ocean Beach after experiencing the midwest climate.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dixon of Los Angeles were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sholly of 4526 Tivoli St. on the week-end of April 12.

MEET YOUR OCEAN BEACH NEIGHBORS

The spotlight swings this week to Ted Bates, genial treasurer of the Ocean Beach Lions Club and manager of the Ocean Beach Elm's Clothing store. Ted first saw the light of day in Frankfort, Ky. The latter city is famous for its distilleries but, to get back on our subject, Ted attended grade school in a country school in Franklin County, Kentucky. He graduated from the Peak Mills, Ky., high school and went on into the halls of higher learning at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, and the Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College, Richmond.

Lacking only a few credits of getting his Bachelor of Science degree, Ted went to work teaching school and wound up as principal of a Franklin County consolidated school. After four years of riding herd on the young Kentuckians, Ted decided it would be easier to sell things, so he went to work for the J. C. Penney stores. He worked in various Penney stores in Kentucky for 8½ years and then moved to Bedford, Ind., where he was assistant manager of the Penney store in that town. He remained in Bedford for three years and then went to work for the Lucas Harold Manufacturing Co., in Indianapolis. This firm made Norden bomb sites and Ted was made production control head for the rotary and gudgeon (?) department.

In the fall of 1943 Ted started singing "California Here I Come"

Ted Bates

(Studio of the Cliffs)

and arrived in Ocean Beach shortly thereafter. He worked in the purchasing and flight research departments at Consolidated until May, 1944, when he went to work for the Elms Stores as manager of their Ocean Beach branch. An enthusiastic Ocean Beach booster. Ted belongs to the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce and the Mission Bay Chamber of Commerce in addition to the Lions club. At one time he was an ardent rock collector and he still belongs to the San Diego Mineralogical Society. Asked if he had any hobbies, Ted said, "Sure—talking about fishing. Not much actual fishing though."

1000 PERSONS ENTER SAN DIEGO YELLOWTAIL DERBY DURING 1ST WEEK

Registration for the first annual $5000 added San Diego Yellowtail Fishing Derby during the first week in operation totaled over 1000, Derby officials announced. Catches averaged nearly one per registrant and over 200 of the Yellowtail were weighed-in for the qualifying period which extends until August 24. The final day of fishing will be held August 30 and will bring together the 300 anglers who landed the heaviest Yellowtail during the qualifying period.

Prizes to be awarded for the champion Yellowtail fisherman include a 1947 automobile for first place, $750 for second, $500 for third, and $350 for fourth. A beautiful $500 trophy will be awarded for the largest Yellowtail caught during both the qualifying and and final periods, and weekly prizes will be given for the periodic leaders. These extra awards include rowboats, outboard motors, fishing equipment and other merchandise.

The registration fee for entry in the San Diego Derby is $1 which permits the registrant to fish as often as he wishes. Each angler may enter as many Yellowtail as he desires and a 25-cent weighing-in charge will be made for each fish. The Derby is open to everyone except Derby officials, commercial fishermen, operators of charter boats for sportfishing, and their families.

who's lost his mother. Splashing water makes me look through the sprouting tree trunks to a pond where a duck is lighting. There is a familiar sound—it's a little black and white bird, like the one who uses Mom's clothes line for a perch, clicking, as he snaps up a bug. In the nearest stagnant pool an invisible frog's croaking reminds me of the noise that comes from rubbing a notched stick with another stick. As an echo, a second frog answers. A two-inch wasp buzzes near me, I wonder if he builds a mud hive, as the yellow-jackets above. At my back, on the rock ledge, a fearless pin-striped sparrow scratches in the drying remains of a dead sheep. Darn that fly that keeps lighting on my sticky toes! Doesn't he know he's pestering me? A car whines overhead—a frog jumps "kerplunk" and is safe 'neath the slime plant. Golly there are a lot of butterflys! A big golden one with black designs nearly bumped into me. A light yellow one sits on the moss, opening and closing his wings in the sunshine as though catching his breath. 'Round a flowering shrub hovers a large black fellow, eager for nectar. A white one daintily flits over the fine new grass. When a sparrow sips from a tiny running stream I remember my hot sunburned face and swallow cool water from my canteen. Rings ripple the reflection under a bared tree root—was it a frog? No, for goodness sake, there's a turtle, larger than my open hand! He's swimming, now he rests with a front foot on a stone, head and shoulders looking like part of the rock.

The wind has come up. It blows my bike over with a metallic clang. It sways the trees and breaks off a small dead branch that rattles to the ground—mother nature pruning. The wind ruffles the manes and tails of two brown horses nuzzling each other across the way. It brings me the hum of a diesel engine long before the huge truck rumbles by. The wind's mouthless "whoing" through the bright green leaves and dead looking limbs, gives me an odd feeling—and—gosh, I've got to be going! I'll never get to Del Rio this way!

Wishing you a Happy Easter Mom. Love,
Norma.

April 9, 1947.

Dear Fam'bly:

"Lady Luck" sure keeps a careful watch over your darling offspring!

When I reached San Antonio I was broke again and very homeless. I phoned the people whose address Ken Bradly of Pine Valley gave me. They opened their home to me as though I was their long lost child. "Where have you been?" Martha asked me over the phone, "We've been looking for you." How they knew I was coming sure surprised me. The next day I hunted for work. Most of the prospects were carhopping and waitress. I wasn't choosy and when I chanced into a Chinese cafe that would put me to work immediately I accepted. I started at 5 p. m. and made $4 in tips before I went home at 1 a. m. Home (with the Stantials) was six blocks from my new job. Today is an anniversary. I've been at the "Shanghai" a whole week (and boy is my pocketbook bulging, thank heavens!)

Last Tuesday evening I had a delightful surprise! Two kids beckoned me to their table. One was an 18-year-old from Hoover High, the other was Beverly Callahan's 16-year-old brother, from my dear old Alma Mater, Point Loma, here for three years in the army. It was quitting time for me, 7:00, so I changed from white uniform to dungarees and ate dinner with them. What a gab-fest we had and such a pitifully homesick trio we made! After dinner we rode some gadgets in one of San Antonio's numerous year-round amusement parks, went to see the movie "13 Rue Madeline" and walked the two miles home from town. It was 1 a. m. We got a passle of stares from San Antonians. Me in my typical California plaid shirt, flanked by two lads in typical California school clothes.

What a glorious gob of gabbing we did! I was so grateful for the news of all the home base activities. I laughed till I cried at the two kids jive talking and joking! Now I know how it feels to find a friend from home, away from home—"strictly has it!" (Callahan's pet saying.)

Last night after I served the two their dinner at the Shanghai I found a box of candy with the empty plates—bless their sweet 'lil hides! I passed it around to my co-workers and I want you all to share the rest.

Yours truly,
Norma.

Editor's note: Norma spent a day in Pine Valley with the Ken Bradleys referred to in her letter. She also spent two days with Mrs. Carl Mertz of Del Rio. Parts of a letter from Mrs. Mertz follow:

April 2, 1947.

Dear Mrs. Belloff:

I thought perhaps you might like some word from someone who had seen your daughter recently.

I was in my yard weeding the lawn and all at once there she was at the curb asking if she could sleep in my back yard. After talking to her a few minutes I told her she could. So she parked the bike in the back yard and was soon around in the front yard helping me weed the lawn, and we were getting acquainted. She ate with us then that night and the next morning and I told her if she were not in too much of a hurry I'd take her to our cabin 14 miles from Del Rio on Devil's river. So she stayed and we went fishing. She spent Saturday night here also and then was up early Sunday morning and on her way.

I felt like I had known her for a long time after visiting only a short time with her. She is a remarkable girl, reliable and self-reliant. We all (my neighbors) marveled that she would want to take such a trip, but there is no accounting for the ideas of our youth. She speaks so frequently of you and her father.

I feel that you must worry a lot about her. But I believe she will accomplish her trip without mishap in any way. Some day when she gets home, I hope she will write me.

She can tell you about me when she gets home. I have one adopted daughter who is married and I would have been frantic had she had any desire to see the world as Norma has, so I know it must have cost you plenty to agree to let her start. So I want to say to you, you have more faith in God, or whatever it takes. So with best wishes and trusting that Norma will accomplish her ambition, I am Sincerely yours,
Mellie Mertz.

Mrs. R. W. Parnell of San Bernardino arrived for a visit at the home of her son, Charles Parnell, 1768 Sunset Cliffs Blvd., Wednesday, April 16. Mrs. Parnell plans to be here several days.

John McCassery, son of Mrs. E. McCassery of 4947 Muir Ave., will return home to Ocean Beach this week-end after a year's service in Virginia with the U. S. Army. John is being discharged and plans to remain in Ocean Beach.

The Bay Sportsman

By Francis Hersey

ON THE SHORT SIDE: From the State Bureau of Licenses word has reached me that the sale of angling licenses in 1946 in our state was over a million and a half dollars. How much has been used in SAN DIEGO COUNTY of this money? Very little, my friends. It seems that our county is always the last one in the state to get any benefits from the Fish and Game Commission, yet sportsmen from all over the state come here for their pleasure. It is high time that all the local sportsmen start fighting for their fair share of the Fish and Game funds.

The main reason we do not receive our share of funds is not a lack of money, but rather it is due to poor business and politics. The only way we can ever get what is due is for the sportsmen to organize . . . join an up-and-coming sportsmans club, attend the meetings and start fighting for your rights. If you don't, San Diego County will keep right on being the forgotten part of the state as it has always been, so let's get together and try and get our fair share.

Now that the opening of the trout season is behind us, I wonder how many, if any trout are left in the local streams. From the turnout of fishermen on the first day I don't see how any could be left. Let us hope that the state will re-stock the streams soon!

From reports from local lakes the bass are still very shy but bluegill, crappie and catfish are hitting. Lake Wohlford has had some fine catches of catfish. Henshaw is hot on the bluegill. Lake Mead and Havasu are tops for bass if you can afford the time it takes to fish there, also many fine rainbow trout have been taken from Willow Beach on the Colorado river this past week.

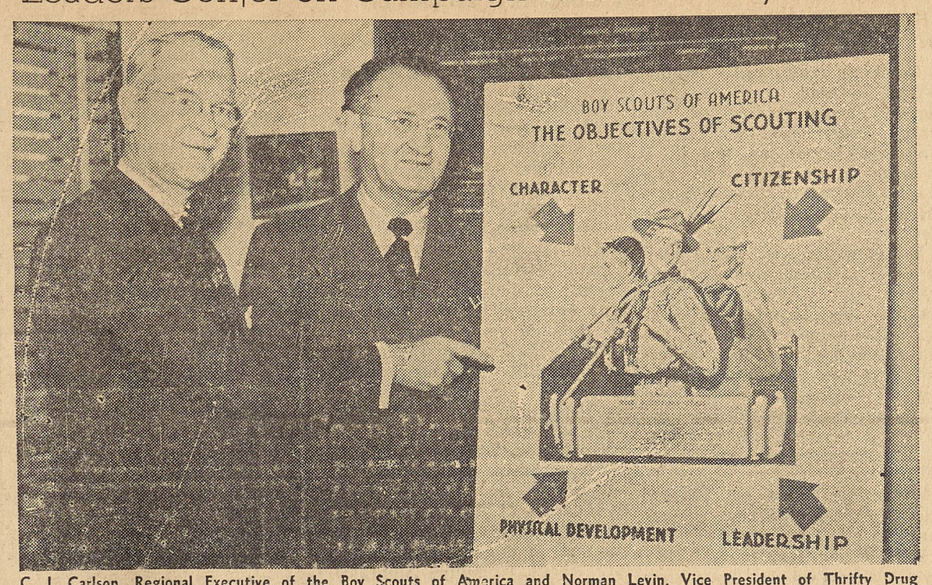
Ocean fishing has been off the beam, due to dirty water and high winds. Some ling cod and bass being taken from the kelp beds, but only a half dozen or so "Yellows" taken at the Islands over the week-end. The "Experts" figure that by Thursday, if our San Diego climate behaves itself, fishing should pick up again on the outside.

In the bay flounder has been the fish, many having been taken also a few bass and croaker, and of course there is always some halibut, although the size and quantity has left much to be desired.

To close with . . . let me remind you again . . . BE CAREFUL OF YOUR MATCHES AND SMOKES . . . this will be one of our worst years insofar as fires are concerned, so do your part and BE CAREFUL.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Taylor of 2424 Seaside announce the arrival of a seven-pound son whom they named Glen Allen. The baby arrived on Monday, April 7, at 7:40 p. m. at the Quintard hospital. Mrs. Taylor's mother, Mrs. J. B. Regan of Crowley, La., is staying with her daughter at this time and also visiting with her sons, Willis Le Jeune and Clinton Le Jeune and family, all of Ocean Beach.

Leaders Confer on Campaign to Recruit Boy Scouts



C. J. Carlson, Regional Executive of the Boy Scouts of America and Norman Levin, Vice President of Thrifty Drug Stores Co., Inc. point out objectives of Thrifty's campaign to encourage youth to join the Boy Scouts of America. The Campaign is to be launched in fifty-four California communities.

Ocean Beach G. I. In Japan to Meet Home Town Girls

Mrs. Ralph G. Chadwick of 2135 Froude St. reported to the News recently that her son, Pfc. Richard Chadwick, who is now stationed in Japan, was able to get in touch with the two Ocean Beach girls, Shirley Jensen and Margaret Connor, who are working in Tokyo, after reading the article in the March 14 issue about them. Mrs. Chadwick sent her son a copy of this issue, which had a picture of the two girls in front of the Kamakura Buddha. Richard has seen this Buddha himself many times. A reunion of these three Ocean Beach youths will take place in Kamakura in the near future, according to reports received here.

Dick is a native of Ocean Beach and was in the class of 1946 at Point Loma High school. He enlisted in the Army in August last year, took his training in Fort Knox, Ky., and was then shipped to Japan, where he is stationed at Fort McGill, near Yokosuka. He is an ambulance driver for the 12th Cavalry Medics. His letter tells of how he enjoys driving on the left-hand side of the road (standard in Japan) without the worry of an Ocean Beach cop to haul him in. He has sent many Japanese objects of art home, including some fine silk articles. His thumb-nail description of Japan: "Just a dirty place, and I can't even get in any good fishing."

MRS. ORRICK TELLS OF CHILD WELFARE PROGRAM IN RADIO BROADCAST

Speaking over radio station KYOR Tuesday, April 15, Mrs. Myrtle Orrick represented the Ocean Beach Auxiliary of the American Legion on the G. I. Information program. This program features speakers from auxiliaries in the San Diego area each week.

In her address on "Child Welfare," Mrs. Orrick referred to the children of America as "our greatest asset to national security." She urged support of the Child Welfare program, "to assure care and protection to children of veterans of both World Wars and to insure that no child will be in need of the necessities of life, by providing material relief to those children who need temporary aid and in securing local assistance on a more permanent basis."

Mrs. Orrick further told that "one hundred children have been helped in this area during the past year by the Legion. Most of these were the children of disabled veterans."

PILNEYS RETURN FROM EAST

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pilney of 3640 Oliphant St. returned last week from Chicago, Ill., where they have been visiting relatives for two months. The Pilneys left Ocean Beach February 17, and according to Mrs. Pilney it would "take a book" to write about all the things they did and saw while on their visit. The weather in Chicago was a mixture, everything from sleet, ice and snow, winds and some sunshine. They returned April 10, via the southern route. The Pilneys are quoted as saying that they are glad to be back in Ocean Beach and that "until you spend some time back East you never really appreciate our perfect climate."

Publisher Reports On NEA Convention In Ft. Worth, Texas

Publisher Frank Swan, now in Forth Worth, Texas, where he and Mrs. Swan have been attending the National Editorial Association convention, sent the following account of his trip and the convention by mail:

April 8—The Carlsbad Caverns highlighted today's trip. A guide hurried us through the four-hour tour, during which we saw dozens of immense underground rooms boasting fantastically shaped stalactites and stalagmites. This phenomenon is certainly one of the world's wonders. The Caverns alone are worth a trip from San Diego to see. The lowest level is 830 feet below the surface. The temperature in the cave was a comfortable 58 degrees. We went down into the cave on foot but returned to the surface by elevator. About 3 million sightseers have visited these caves, according to the guide.

April 9—Through Texas to Forth Worth today. Was surprised to find so much cultivated farm land on highway 180 through west Texas. Central Texas is largely cattle country, the countryside dotted with scrub oak. This part of the state is rolling surfaced, rather than flat plain. At Anson, county seat of Jones county, there was a statue in the courthouse yard of Anson Jones, last president (1844-45) of the Republic of Texas. Yesterday we noted that eastern New Mexico was mostly wasteland, although considerable oil well activity indicated it may be valuable property.

April 10—Arrived in Forth Worth. The convention of the National Editorial Association began today with 450 publishers and their wives attending. Boyce House, noted Texas humorist, was the first speaker, and he went to great lengths to tell us how big Texas is. We didn't need much persuasion, having driven through half of it.

April 11—Dallas, another large Texas city of many skyscrapers, entertained the convention this afternoon and evening. Heard another story about the size of Texas: 17 capitals of other states are closer to Texarkana, Texas, than is El Paso.

April 12—U. S. Senator George W. Malone of Nevada was one of the speakers at today's session. He advocated a flexible tariff, administered by a tariff commission, rather than reciprocal trade agreements with other countries. Brig. Gen. Roger S. Ramey of the Eighth Air Force, another speaker, expounded a theory we were already pretty well sold on—that air power will be the dominant force in any war to come. We enjoyed an escorted motor caravan of Fort Worth, including the huge Consolidated-Vultee plant here. A real Texas banquet, with Lieut. Governor Allan Shivers as speaker, closed the convention tonight. Tomorrow we start on a 1000-mile train tour of Texas—a special tour for the publishers.

Mrs. Aleman, Mother of Mexico's President, Visiting in Ocean Beach; Likes Climate

Visiting in Ocean Beach from her temporary home in Tecate, Mexico, is an exciting experience packed full of interesting places to see for Mrs. Miguel Aleman, mother of Mexico's president Miguel Aleman. According to Mrs. Aleman, a small charming woman with humorous dark eyes, "I am very happy here in this wonderful climate and want to stay as long as possible." She is visiting at the home of the American Vice-Consul at Tijuana, Willis Myers, and his family at 5033 Niagara Ave. Mrs. Josephine Myers and Mrs. Aleman are second cousins and grew up in the same town, Acayucan, in Vera Cruz.

Not only as the mother of Mexico's popular president but also of one of Mexico's well known doctors, she is justly proud of her two sons and a small jeweled pin bearing the president's picture serves as a lapel pin on her dress. At the mention of her son's name she beams proudly.

In narrating her life Mrs. Aleman told that she is the former Tomasa Veldez and she marreid the late General Miguel Aleman in Oluta, Vera Cruz near Acayucan in 1900. They had three sons, Antonio, Miguel and Carlos. Antonio, who was a doctor, died 22 years ago. Miguel, the president, is in Mexico City at present and Dr. Carlos Aleman is with his mother here in Ocean Beach. When asked about her grandchildren she presented her two granddaughters, Dulce and Celia, who are Dr. Aleman's daughters and also visiting at the Myers home. Another member of the party is Dr. Arturo Higareda L. of Mexico City, a close friend of Dr. Aleman. "I have also three grandsons, sons of the president," said Mrs. Aleman. "The youngest, Georgie, is only 3 weeks old."

She reports that her son has the ambition of seeing his country become the most beautiful in the world and he and his cabinet plan a lower cost of living and higher percentage of literacy for the Mexican people. She also says that they were very pleasantly impressed with President Truman, who visited at the Aleman home at Colonia Chapultep while in Mexico City.

Mrs. Aleman plans to stay here for two months and then go, with Mrs. Myers, to San Francisco for a visit with Mrs. Myers' son, Arthur, 22, who is studying medicine at the University of California at Berkeley, Calif.

Army Colonel Sees Financial Gains From Bay Project

ENGINEER PUTNAM SAYS $1,500,000 A YEAR TO BE SPENT BY BOAT OWNERS

Col. Rufus W. Putnam, District Army Engineer at Los Angeles, in a report to the Chief of Army Engineers in Washington, related the following:

"Experience elsewhere shows that there would be expended annually in the Mission Bay area about $1,500,000 by owners of the small-craft fleet. This does not include expenditures by operators of visiting craft. . . .

"In addition to personnel working on the small-craft fleet, more than 500 persons engaged in the operation and maintenance of the project and businesses directly resulting from it would be employed by the City and by private business.

Estimated at $1,250,000

"The annual payroll would total $1,250,000 and the annual benefit in the form of federal income taxes would be $125,000. These benefits do not take into consideration that the largest percentage of salaries earned would be spent in the community, yielding further revenue in the form of income and additional taxation through the creation of additional business resulting from such salary expenditures."

Col. Putnam predicts that "a major item of new business would consist of the original sale of recreational craft as the direct result in improvement of the navigation facilities. In Mission Bay, the sales price of 2000 new small craft would be about $14,000,000. Over a 20-year period this would amount to $700,000 a year. The taxable income on sales would be $210,000, and the net revenue to the United States in the form of income taxes would be about $42,000 a year."

Huge Benefit Visioned

Tangible benefits to the community or the government in savings, new business or increased tax revenue, $1,233,150 a year, Col. Putnam estimates. He breaks it down like this:

Flood damage prevention, $52,000 savings; change in land use, or use of new lands, $420,000; fish catch (additional), $70,000; increase in tax base, $132,000; creation of new business, $257,000; mosquito control, $15,000; saving in travel (for boat operators and sportsmen) $19,450; and creation of new beach land plus beach erosion prevention, $32,700.

Commenting on economic development stemming from the Mission Bay project, Col. Putnam claims "the area that would be affected by the improvement comprises nearly all of San Diego and Imperial Counties, parts of Riverside and San Bernardino Counties and the State of Arizona."

The colonel means that tourists and small pleasure boat operators from this wide area would make use of the Mission Bay yacht harbor.

Record Shows Flood Losses

To back up their recommendations for the San Diego River flood control phase of the Mission Bay project the Army Engineers dug into the records and came up with these facts which most San Diegans probably either never knew or have forgotten:

"The floods of 1916 and 1927 overflowed all the bottom lands in the Mission Valley area and the upper San Diego River valley. About 22 homes were destroyed by the 1916 flood in the upper San Diego River valley, and a few business houses in Lakeside were flooded; the water reached a depth of one foot in the (Lakeside) town hall. Total direct damage in the San Diego River basin was estimated at $565,000 in 1916 and $117,500 in 1927.

"Information on floods (in the San Diego area) between 1811 and 1912 was obtained from historical accounts and statements of old residents. The records and historical data indicated that great floods occurred in 1862, 1884 and 1916; large floods in 1825, 1874, 1889, 1891, 1895 and 1927, and medium floods in 1867, 1906, 1921 and 1937.

"The flood of 1862 probably was the largest, but that of 1916 was the most destructive."

House Document 760, recently sent to the speaker of the house in Washington, D. C. is made up of communications of the Army Engineers and the other Federal Agencies which have had a hand in bringing the Mission Bay development to a point where only congressional approval of a $5,858,000 appropriation is needed to complete the record.

Army Engineers to Go Ahead

That appropriation might have come this year but for a wave of economy sweeping through the government and inspired by Congress.

This does not mean the Mission Bay project is at a standstill until Uncle Sam puts up his $5,858,000 share of the $14,680,000 project. Army engineers will go ahead with plans and other preparations against the day when Congress comes through. That might be next year, or the year after. Nobody can say, because Congress itself cannot say as yet.

TEEN CHATTER

By Alyce Rosa

Highlighting this week's teen chatter is "Shipwreck" to be presented at Wallace Hall tomorrow night by the Kampus Katz. The garb for this closed bid affair (at which 400 members of the "young set" are expected) is something new around these parts—anything from a tuxedo to a swim suit goes! You see, guests are invited to come as they think they would be when their ship was wrecked! According to Ginny Clark, prexy, the hall will be decorated in a jungle motif. This gala affair climaxes the club's first year of organization — members include: Margie Arney, Zona Arney, June Belloff, Doris Braden, Beverly Cornett, Lou Cure, Bonnie Graham, Marian Mishler, Betty Steely and Ginny Clark.

Congratulations are in order to the fellows in Point Loma's Boys' Federation for their dance "Spring Time" presented last Friday night in the girls' gym of the school. The music of Loman alum Kenny O'Neal's orchestra provided music and Quentin Decker, Bud Burrows, Mal Silva, Norman Oliver and Jack Gross were featured in the floor show. Surprise of the evening was the door prize—two rabbits, won by Joannie Miller and her date! Potted palms, daisies and orchids were featured in the clever decorations directed by Bob Hobson. Gordon Thompson, commissioner of boys' activities, was in general charge of the event. Among the couples at the dance we gimpsed: John Percival-Joey Wight, Bill Stone-Arita Winston, Ray Creelman-Betty Hodges, John de Beck-Beverly Brittingham, and Tom Spence-Lillian Hallstrom. Former Loman Anne Roswell, squired by Bill Cisco, wore a stunning light green dress made off one shoulder. Irene Brainard, who attended with her best beau, Don Lyons (from San Diego High), chose a cocoa and green suit which was really eye-catching.

Looking into the crystal ball we keep to see what's ahead for the teen crowd, we noticed that the drill team of Point Loma High school is planning a print 'n' cord dance in the girls' gym on May 2. According to the social committee co-chairmen Peggy Malm and Caryl Buell, Point Loma's annual ASB Ball is set for May 16 at the Thursday club. These are two dates which all Lomans are looking forward to!

At the senior class meeting called on April 9 by President Harry Shannon, Loman seniors heard the long-awaited committee reports. Dale Shoupe of the Ditch Day committee announced that June 11 was the date and Del Mar the place for the holiday from studies. June 15, according to Chairman Darlene Gardner, is the date of vesper services—to be held at the Central Christian church. Peggy O'Neal reported that the prom was set for June 17 at the Hotel Del Coronado. The commencement committee, headed by Bob Pastore, reported that this event is scheduled for June 19 at the Greek Bowl on Point Loma.

Robert D. Williams, vice-principal of Point Loma High, has announced that junior boys should apply now to represent their school at the annual Boys' State Meeting to be held in June. Those accepted will spend one week in Sacramento—all expenses paid! From the counselor's office of the school comes the news that seniors who wish to apply for permanent or summer jobs should do so in that office at once.

And so ends this week's round-up of teen activities. Watch for this column in the next issue of the Ocean Beach News—and in the meantime anyone having news for Teen Chatter please call B-5745.

Rare Fish, Fight, Love and Enjoy Life at Aquarium

(By Marian Krettler)

As Henry LaJoie's interest in tropical fish increased, what began as a hobby continued as a fine local commercial enterprise. Importations from the Amazon, Siam, China and India populate the many aquariums at 4975 Del Monte avenue where Mrs. LaJoie shares her husband's enthusiasm and works beside him in his chosen avocation. With Mrs. LaJoie as guide, a visitor to the Del Monte aquarium learns how the animated bits of brilliant costume jewelry differ in instinct and custom as widely as do individuals of the human race.

Mr. Siamese Fighting Fish was busy on the surface of his tank, blowing a nest of bubbles for his impending young. His paler mate rested near the bottom while the multi-colored little fellow flirted his finny draperies over his labors. When the female deposits her clutch of between four and five hundred eggs in the bubble nest, she must be removed from the tank or die at the onsloughts of her mate. For 38 hours he guards the nest until hatching releases the babies. Until they become "free swimming" he is a model parent, but then turns cannibalistic, eating the young if he is not removed. That is why we saw so many males of this variety confined in solitary jars.

Mrs. LaJoie explained that much as cocks and dogs are matched in other countries, the Siamese matched males of the Fighting Fish species. The ensuing combat terminated with death.

An opalescent inch-long body complete with light-reflecting red-dish spots at either extremity marks the Head and Tail Light fish. The baby Firemouth begins life as an ordinary creation but maturity colors mouth areas a deep red. Hence its name.

The long waving appendages of the Angel Fish—or Scalari—are white and graceful, but at first the young resemble tadpoles. Passing through various stages until they become angels too.

Mrs. LaJoie related how difficult it is to find Scalari matings. Either they prefer single life or mate for keeps. She hoped that a pair in a secluded aquarium would produce progeny. The signs seemed favorable, for Mr. Scalari's colors had brightened and he was performing swimming feats for the diversion of his intended wife.

Garami—mother of pearl with black striplings, are almost diamond shaped. They prepare bubble nests for their offspring while the Scalari deposits the spawn on a leaf.

An aquarium seems an odd place for an overturned flower pot, but it's the spawning spot for the Blue Acora. Once the babies arrive, each will be moved several times a day to a new spot in the sand. Both parents tending them and carefully scrubbing the children.

Handsome Sail Fin Molly, who bears her young instead of depositing eggs, was hard to see. This species is bashful, hiding faces from strangers, but swimming close when their owners are alone with them. Molly is coal black and very handsome when the high dorsal fin is elevated.

Only a visit to the LaJoie aquarium can properly disclose the many interesting varieties for observation and study. But there's much more to this business than that of watching pretty fishes swim about in well-kept aquariums. Temperature must be carefully watched, especially during spawning time when it rises from 74 degrees to 78 or 80 degrees. When many fish are housed in one aquarium, the water must be aerated, a condition not so necessary when private owners keep a few specimens.

Aquarium glass is kept clean by Mystery and Red Ram's Horn snails. The former variety spawns out of water on glass, and is an air breather. We watched a Mystery as it rose to the tank surface and began pumping air into the receptacle provided by nature.

The LaJoie fish are fed once or twice daily, all they can eat in five minutes. They enjoy a garden worm if it is cut into small lengths, but a special type of white threadlike worm is shelved away on earth for their special delectation. Out in the LaJoie yard are huge barrels of daphne, another form of live food. You've seen those swarms of microscopic creatures flying over ponds? Well, those are "daphne" but the LaJoies breed their own swarms since wild introduction might also bring creatures destructive to fish life into the aquariums.

The tropical plants growing in the aquariums could be a study by themselves. In the well stocked LaJoie project, everything for the tropical fish enthusiast is stocked. Nets, beautiful aquariums, food, supplies of all kinds.

Whether fish have the intelligence to know people or not is a disputed point, but Mrs. LaJoie says that they do. On the approach of a stranger the finny creatures flutter about their watery domain. When it's quiet, and the LaJoies are home in the evening, the more curious fish come up against the glass to see what is going on outside. Maybe they listen to broadcasts, who knows? After listening they may go back to the pursuits of their own aquariums, considering that the life of a fish isn't so poor after all.

PRESIDENTIAL LIMITATION

Democratic processes are sometimes criticized as slow and cumbersome—certainly a minor disability when the end product embraces the expressed will of a majority of the people. Dictators have it easier, of course—as witness Franco's decision that his successor will be a new King of Spain. Pen and ink were all he needed to make up his people's mind.

The American people, through their State Legislatures, are in the process of deciding whether to limit Presidential tenure to two terms by Constitutional amendment.

The decision will not be made overnight. In fact, it may be several years before the necessary affirmative action by 36, or three-fourths of the States, is forthcoming. But the idea that no man is indispensable has been crystallizing in the public mind since the days of the New Deal. From the time of Washington, the two-term limitation had the authority of unwritten law. A Nation surrounded by a world at war discarded it. Now the realization is growing that a written law is desirable to guarantee democratic rotation of the Presidential office.

Yes, democracy may sometimes be unwieldy, but when the votes are finally counted, they represent the voice of the people. As Americans, we wouldn't have it any other way.

THE ERA OF HENRY FORD

It is so often said, in commenting on the death of noted men, that their passing marks the end of an era. But in the case of Henry Ford, it was his vision that opened an era; no thinking person will want to countenance the death of the era with him.

Scarcely an American of the present generation is not heir in some degree to the more bountiful living generated by the genius of the Detroit industrialist. The period that Henry Ford pioneered has been the age of mass production, of the assembly line, of more and better goods for more and more people—at a price within the reach of all.

Ford's notions were ridiculed at the outset. Obviously, it was believed, a luxury such as an automobile only could be the possession of the fortunate and privileged few. But in a few short years the happy catch-phrase "you can afford a Ford," was sweeping the Nation. The era of Henry Ford had begun—an era that was to bring the American promise to its highest degree of fulfillment.

Feeling our way today out of the debris of confusion engendered by the war's disruption of our economy, we have desperate need for more and better goods for more and more people—at a price within the reach of all. Henry Ford has laid down the torch—the Nation's prosperity requires the emergence of industrial leaders of similar stature to carry it forward.

The devil may take the hindmost first but he is after the whole lot of us.

Those who wait for a better society to produce better men will never become the better men who can produce a better society.

residential district that will be a slum area in a few years.

Really good homes will attract substantial public-spirited citizens, the type we hope to have settle in our Ocean Beach. In an emergency, these people will rent anything that affords a roof, but this circumstance will end, and as homes are available, our shacks will be deserted. Then, the neighbors we find living among us will be people we will not care to have our children associate with, but it will be too late to rectify our mistake. Let us do something about it now.

Mrs. E. L. Copenhaver.

Gentlemen:

We compliment you on your editorial on housing in the April 11 issue. Our section of the city is at long last just coming into its own. Our fine new stores and the many good houses denote the confidence we have in Ocean Beach and our ambition that we become outstanding as a desirable and beautiful community.

Hence, we do not want shacks dumped here to contribute slum housing and to devaluate adjoining property. Indeed, the fine body of citizens comprising our Chamber of Commerce and our other clubs is determined that architectural standards of high quality must be maintained, and we are going to take any steps necessary to insure this being accomplished.

Our veterans deserve something better than shack housing, places in which they can take pride, but we cannot expect private builders to erect such homes if their capital is endangered by undesirable mess halls and barracks.

Ocean Beach is an integral part of San Diego with its natural beauty of cliff and sea and we want all San Diego to be as proud of our section as we are ourselves.

Yours very truly,
Marian Krettler,
1641 Cable St.

(Editor's note: We wish to report that, in line with the current campaign to protect our residential area from being made into a slum area by makeshift housing, this newspaper turned down an advertisement from a firm wishing to sell army barracks to be moved into vacant lots in this area.)

struction got under way with federal government financing it under the Works Project Administration, using federal workmen and city equipment. This work came to a stop in May, 1942, when the WPA was declared officially dead. At this time the pier had been extended 300 feet out, using railway rails as girders. The Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce, which had taken a leading part in the pier plan from the first, then enlisted city aid in putting a railing around the uncompleted structure so that it could be used for shallow-water fishing until such time as it might be completed.

This brings us to the dormant wartime period. Next week we will discuss the more recent activity in the long battle to build the pier, in which many local organizations and individuals have taken part. Recently the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce, the Mission Bay Chamber of Commerce, the Ocean Beach Republican club, and other organizations, in addition to numerous civic-minded individuals, have expended much time and effort in promoting the continued construction of the pier.

Andrew Tosh, chairman of the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce Fishing Pier Committee, informed the News this week that he has contacted Senator Knowland and Congressman Fletcher to see if it would be possible to divert some of the money appropriated for the Mission Bay project into the pier construction, since the pier would be a highly important asset to the success and popularity of the Bay project. Mr. Tosh has also contacted State Senator Fred H. Kraft and other members of the San Diego delegation in Sacramento to enlist their support in financing and expediting the matter, in addition to local political and civic organizations.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Burdine of 4868 Santa Cruz Ave. entertained their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bass and sons Jimmy, Tommy and Bobby, of San Bernardino, Calif., over the Easter week-end.
